

Covid cases stabilising but reproduction number in newer states a concern: govt

KAUNAIN SHERIFF M
NEW DELHI, AUGUST 10

RAISING A red flag, the Centre on Tuesday said that while Covid-19 cases are "stabilising" across the country, the reproduction number (or R value) greater than 1, specifically from newer states, including Uttar Pradesh and Punjab, is a "significant reason to be concerned".

The warning by the head of India's Covid-19 task force, Dr V K Paul, came after the Health Ministry on Tuesday said that eight states are reporting R value equal to 1 and above, which indicates how fast the virus is spreading in a region.

The ministry said that in Punjab, which is reporting R of 1.3, the daily cases are increasing. Similarly, in Himachal Pradesh (1.3 R), Uttar Pradesh (1.1 R), and Andhra Pradesh (1 R) there is an indication of a likely increase in cases. In Gujarat and Madhya Pradesh (1.1), Goa and Nagaland (1), daily cases are stable but require strict containment.

"If you look at the overall picture, our R is hovering around 1. But some states are reporting more than 1, and there is an increasing trend which is a cause for concern," Paul said. "Again, a very profound word of caution: (in) Himachal Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh (daily new cases can) likely increase; and Gujarat and Madhya Pradesh Rare at 1.1. This shows that although there is stabilisation in the number of cases, we still have significant reasons to be concerned and vigilant —

NO DEATH DUE TO O2 SUPPLY SNAG: GOVT

New Delhi: During the briefing, the Health Ministry reiterated that it has not got any report on Covid deaths by the states linking it to shortage in supply of oxygen. It said one state has reported a 'suspected case' of death due to shortage in oxygen supply. Lav Agarwal, Joint Secretary, Ministry of Health & Family Welfare, said: "We have questioned the states if there has been any death related to (shortage of) oxygen supply. This question had also come up in Parliament, and we asked them (states) specifically. However, reports that we have received till now, one state has told about a suspect (suspected death due to O2 shortage). (In) reports that have been received so far, those states have not said that they have specifically reported oxygen-related death." ENS and significant reasons to enforce pandemic control measures in all possible ways."

The Health Ministry also said that 44 districts in the country are reporting a case positivity rate of more than 10 percent. It said 37 districts are showing an increasing trend in average daily new cases. Kerala (11), Tamil Nadu (7), Himachal Pradesh (6), and Karnataka (5) are the top states with maximum districts showing an increasing trend in average daily cases.

"This is not the time to lower the guard," Paul said. "We have to be vigilant. Covid-appropriate behaviour, compliance with masks, and not having crowds in closed rooms — all those precautions continue to be very important."

On Tuesday, the Centre also said that out of 58,240 samples sequenced in the country, 28,932 have been detected with a variant of concern (VOC). Dr Sujeet Kumar Singh, director, National Centre of Disease Control, said that as of July, 90 percent of VOC detected in the country were of the highly infectious Delta variant.

Raising concerns over the dominance of Delta variant in the country, Paul said there is growing evidence of an increase in viral load found in patients infected with the highly infectious variant. "There is also a clear message that the Delta variant is ruling the nation; in fact, ruling the world," he said. "You can see the spread of Delta everywhere, which is behind the upsurge of cases. The updated report of WHO on the characteristics of Delta, based on current evidence, shows that transmissibility and attack rate is more."

"If we assume transmissibility of the original virus to be 100, the Alpha variant that originated in the UK was 60 percent more transmissible; and Delta is 60 percent more transmissible than the Alpha, which is 250. New evidence from China is also showing the interval between the exposure of virus and the infection has reduced, as the viral load has increased," Paul said.

Singh said the Delta-plus

Kerala's Covid TPR rises to 15.91% amid national drop

SHAJU PHILIP
THIRUVANANTHAPURAM,
AUGUST 10

THE COVID-19 situation in Kerala is becoming grimmer by the day, with the state's test positivity rate (TPR) rising to 15.91 per cent on Tuesday, even as the figure at the national level continued to be below 2 per cent for a second consecutive week.

The state government lifted most lockdown restrictions last week to kickstart shopping ahead of Onam, when the TPR was only 11 per cent. Since then, the state has been steadily reporting five-digit cases every day.

On Tuesday, Kerala reported around 21,000 cases, while the total number of cases across the country was only 28,204.

Similarly, Kerala has 1.71 lakh positive cases as against the country's total count of 3.88 lakh.

As cases continued to spike, the government on Tuesday decided to bring more areas back under lockdown starting Thursday. For the last one week, panchayat/urban wards with a weekly infection population ratio (WIPR) of more than 10 were declared containment zones. As cases are still high, the lockdown will be extended to all places where WIPR is above 8, which would bring more places again under restrictions.

Earlier, the government had insisted on at least a dose of vaccine jab or an RT-PCR negative certificate to venture out of homes. As that directive had invited wrath, the government on Tuesday clarified that those who are yet to receive Covid-19 vaccination can move out of their homes for essential activities if there are no other persons in the household who have got vaccinated.

Health Department sources said numbers are going up mainly due to poor management of positive cases. "Those who turn positive are reluctant to remain in isolation or move to domiciliary care centres meant for asymptomatic patients. Infected persons get exposed to other members in the family as well as outside, generating more positive cases. The local body level jagratha committees and Covid-19 volunteers are defunct in most places as they have moved to routine activities with the easing of lockdown restrictions and resumption of livelihood activities," sources said.

NCPCR survey finds gaps, wants all minority schools under RTE

ESHAROY
NEW DELHI, AUGUST 10

AFTER CONDUCTING a nationwide assessment of minority schools, the National Commission of Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR) has recommended to the government to bring all such schools, including madarasas, under the purview of Right to Education and Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan campaign. The NCPCR also backed reservation for students from minority communities in such schools after its survey found a large proportion of non-minority students studying there.

According to the NCPCR report, which was released Tuesday, 74 per cent of students in Christian missionary schools belonged to non-minority communities. Overall, 62.50 per cent of students in such schools belonged to non-minority communities.

The report titled "Impact of Exemption under Article 15 (5) with regards to Article 21A of the Constitution of India on Education of Minority Communities" states that it was also found that the largest number of out-of-school children — at 1.1 crore — belonged to the Muslim community.

"The aim of the study was to assess how the 93rd Amendment, which exempts minority institutions from the otherwise mandatory provisions of Right to Education, has affected children belonging to minority communities and whether there has been a gap," NCPCR Chairperson Priyank Kanoongo told The Indian Express.

"We have looked at minority institutions per se and madarasas in particular. We have some startling findings, including that 74 per cent of students studying in Christian missionary schools do not belong to the minority community," he said. "Many schools, we know, have registered as minority institutions, simply because they don't have to implement RTE. But can Article 30, which ensures the right of minorities to open their own institutions for cultural linguistic and religious protection, contravene what is in Article 21(A) which protects a child's fundamental right to education. Surely Article 21 (A) must prevail," Kanoongo.

"This exemption needs to be reviewed," he said, adding that it deprives education in these institutions to underprivileged children from minority communities. "Through the report, the Commission has recommended to the government that Right to Education and Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan be extended to all minority schools, including madarasas."

According to the NCPCR report, only 8.76 per cent of the students in minority schools belong to socially and economically disadvantaged background. "Since minority schools are outside the purview of the RTE Act, there is no compulsion to admit students from disadvantaged backgrounds," it says.

Giving a religion-wise breakup of the schools, the report says that while Christians comprise 11.54 per cent of India's minority population, they run 71.96 per cent schools, and Muslims with 69.18 per cent minority population run 22.75 per cent of the schools. Sikhs comprise 9.78 per cent of the minority population and run 1.54 per cent schools; Buddhists with 3.83 per cent minority population run 0.48 per cent schools; and Jains with 1.9 per cent minority population run 1.56 per cent of schools.

According to the report, there are three kinds of madarasas in the country — recognised madarasas which are registered and impart both religious as well as secular education; unrecognised madarasas which have been found deficient for registration by state governments as secular education is not imparted or other factors like lack of infrastructure; and un-mapped madarasas which have never applied for registration.

According to the NCPCR, the Sachar Committee report, which says 4 per cent of Muslim children (15.3 lakh) attend madarasas, has only taken into account the registered madarasas.

The NCPCR report says that the syllabi of madarasas, that has evolved over centuries, are not uniform, and that "being left ignorant of the world around them, many students develop inferiority complex, being alienated from the rest of society and unable to adjust with the environment". It also says that madarasas do not have any teachers training programmes.

The report traces the establishment of minority education institutions to the colonial policy of divide and rule. "Minority schools established before 1947 can be traced to the Divide and Rule policy adopted by the Britishers under which they tried to divide people on the basis of economic, religious, social and political differences," it says. "It was introduced by the 17th Viceroy when he gave provision of separate electorates to create a rift between Hindus and Muslims, thus promoting communal disharmony, as part of the Indian Councils Act 1909 (commonly called the Morley Minto Reforms)."

It also says there was a surge in the number of schools securing Minority Status Certificate after the 93rd Amendment in 2006, with more than "85% schools of the total schools securing the certificate in the years 2005-2009".
